DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-2, 4-12, 15-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Zwezdaryk in view of Clark, along with Burchart.

Zwezdaryk discloses in figures 1-2 a massage device comprising a main body 20, made of flexible material (latex) having elongated portions 14, that can be bent downward, a vibration motor 24 fixed to the top and bottom of the main body (the motor is fixed between the top and body of the main body), a cover 20, a battery box 30, a lead (attached to 30, fig. 2 not numbered), a skirt 18 and at least one contact area 18. However, Zwezdaryk does not disclose the elongated portions fixed in a downward position or the main body made of plastic. Clark teaches in figure 1 a massager comprising a main body 4 made of plastic and having elongated portions (the fingers), bent downward. Burchart teaches in figures 1-3 a motor 24 that is fixed to the upper surface 12 of a body 11. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time that the invention was made that the elongated portions disclosed by Zwezdaryk could be fabricated in a downward bent position as taught by Clark and the main body disclosed by Zwezdaryk could be made of plastic as taught by Clark. The bent elongated portions and the tips on the portions could be used to massage any portions of the body. The plastic material is a flexible, durable and inexpensive material. The motor could be fixed to the upper surface as taught by Burchart in order to allow access to the motor. The motor could extend through the housing on be attached to the top of the housing. The base and the cover provide a protective housing for the motor and the batteries.

Claims 3 and 13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over the references as applied to claim 1 above, and further in view of Kuiken.

Kuiken teaches in figures 1-4 a finger extender comprising elongated portions 60 having receptacles 65 that open upwardly to receive finger tips. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time that the invention was made that the receptacles as taught by Kuiken could be incorporated into the massager disclosed by Zwezdaryk and taught by Clark in order to use the receptacles to hold the tips of the user's fingers onto the ends of the elongated portions.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1-20 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Note: The amendment necessitated a new ground of rejection. Thus the arguments are moot.

Conclusion

Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
